Come meet diplomats from the U.S. Department of State and the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). Discover opportunities that allow you to contribute your interest, experiences, and expertise to work on foreign policies, technology, security, climate change, food security, global health, and more, around the world. Join the diplomatic workforce that reflects and represents America, one where diversity of thought, discipline, and inclusion make us stronger, smarter, and more effective. Help the United States gain a significant competitive advantage on the world stage. Become a member of the U.S. Foreign Service or Civil Service and learn about internship/fellowship opportunities and careers working in one of more than 270 U.S. Embassies or Consulates abroad or right here in the United States.

More about our three U.S. Diplomats —

Shane Christensen, Institute of the Americas Diplomatic Fellow, and former U.S. Consul General in Porto Alegre, Brazil who was responsible for diplomatic relations in Southern Brazil. Prior postings were in Mexico, Cuba, and Afghanistan, as well as with U.S. missions to the United Nations and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), as well as the U.S. Consulate General in Dubai. He is a trained executive coach and has taught leadership and negotiation at the Foreign Service Institute.

Katelyn Choe, Diplomat in Residence for Southern California, Hawaii, Guam, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands. She has 23 years of experience in international relations, government affairs, and leadership management overseeing large, multicultural teams.
